Exempt Review Committee

Policy Statement

The Exempt Review Committee is responsible for reviewing research projects that qualify for exempt status under institutional and federal research compliance guidelines. The committee ensures that studies meeting exempt criteria—typically minimal-risk projects involving educational practices, anonymous surveys, or existing data—still adhere to ethical standards and institutional policies for the protection of human subjects.

Membership Composition

Chair: Chief Academic Officer, including interim appointment, or another Administrator

Three (3) faculty representatives from the Reap College of Creative and Professional Studies

Three (3) faculty representatives from the College of Health Sciences

Faculty representatives will be appointed by the Interim Chief Academic Officer or Other Administrator

Term

An appointed member's term is three years, with possibility of reappointment for one additional term.

Eligibility if effective again after a hiatus of one year.

Procedures

Members of the Exempt Review Committee play a vital role in ensuring that research classified as exempt upholds the institution's ethical and regulatory standards. Committee members are expected to:

- Review submissions for research projects seeking exempt status to confirm they meet federal and institutional criteria for exemption.
- Assess research protocols to ensure participant protections—including confidentiality, informed consent (when required), and data security—are adequately addressed.

- Provide timely and constructive feedback to researchers regarding necessary clarifications, modifications, or documentation.
- Maintain compliance with federal, state, and institutional regulations governing human subjects, research, and research integrity.
- Participate in training and remain informed about updates to ethical guidelines and policy changes related to research oversight.
- Uphold confidentiality in all review discussions and documentation concerning submitted research projects.

Support education and outreach by helping to inform faculty, staff, and students about ethical research practices and the exempt review process.
